Jimmy Barnes joins Century21 to help raise more than expected at a Children's charity event

Australian rock legend, Jimmy Barnes swapped the big stage for the auction stage assisting Century 21's National Franchise Manager, Wayne Johnson, in conducting the Henley Properties 'Home Of Hope' auction at Elmgrove Road Hawkesbury Park (Salisbury North) on Sunday 27th November 2005.

The sale of the two-story four bedroom home was estimated at raising $250,000 for the Flinders Medical Centre Neonatal Unit. Exceeding all expectations the property sold for $294,400 to Bill and Eleanor Slattery from Sefton Park who are extremely happy to know their money is going to a worthy cause.

The money raised will assist the Flinders Medical Centre purchase vital equipment needed for their neonatal unit.

Henley Properties, with assistance from its associated suppliers, generously built the magnificent home on land donated by the South Australian Housing Trust as part of its highly successful Hawkesbury Park re-development scheme.

Jimmy continued the day of festivities with a concert at the Salisbury United Soccer Club.
